The Unlimited Developer License grants the rights of the Developer License for an unlimited number of developers and an unlimited number of user licenses.

The Single User License allows use of the Software for one effective user in your organization. The number of effective users for software licensing is determined by the method defined below that returns the greatest number.

- The number of users contributing to the data that is printed with the Software. For example, 25 users entering or editing data on a host where only 1 program prints barcodes to 1 printer, would require 25 user licenses. According to the multi-user licensing below, this would require 2 Single User Licenses to be purchased.

- The number of users that have the Software installed on their CPU.

- The number of printers that are being printed to with the Software. For example, 1 user printing to 5 printers would require 5 licenses. Per the multi-user licensing below, 2 Single User Licenses would need to be purchased.

Multi-User Licenses are obtained by ordering multiple single user licenses of the same product for one site. The effective number of licensed users is determined by the following:

1 Single User License = 1 licensed user

2 Single User Licenses = 25 licensed users

3 Single User Licenses = 100 licensed users

4 Single User Licenses = Developer License Granted for 10,000 licensed users
